

Cytokines in Transfusion Medicine: A Primer

A concise, introductory-level text for understanding the basic concepts of cytokine biology as they relate to transfusion medicine. The text describes the basic biology of cytokines and their role in transfusion reactions, the use of prestorage leukocyte reduction and bedside filtration to reduce cytokine levels generated during storage, and the use of haematopoietic growth factors for autologous blood, platelets, allogeneic stem cell and granulocyte donors. The basis of the role of cytokines in ex vivo expansion is also addressed.
