

David Hockney: The East Yorkshire Landscape

David Hockney: The East Yorkshire Landscape illustrates an extraordinary body of painting by the artist, who in recent years, has returned to the pastoral landscape of his youth, in order to capture the vistas and changing seasons of his surrounding environs in Northern England. Five large-scale six-canvas paintings of the Woldgate Woods debuted in Hockney's solo exhibition at L.A. Louver Gallery, located in Venice, California (February 9 - March 24, 2007); these same pictures were later exhibited at Tate Britain, London (June 11 - October 28, 2007) and at the Arts Club of Chicago (April 25 - July 18, 2008). Eight smaller paintings from this period are also illustrated in great detail in the catalogue, which features an introduction by L.A. Louver Director Peter Goulds, and text by David Hockney. Designed by Stefan Bucher, 344 Design.
