

Seeing Shapes (Educational Books Book 2)

Children in their early years are developing the skills that recognise colours, shapes and patterns. These educational books for children are designed to enhance such skills. The two characters, Jake and Jenny, explore games and ideas to play by discovering squares, circles and rectangles, including a few more puzzling shapes. This is a playful way to extend your child's primary learning skills as they prepare for and enter school. Viv Rosser brings insights from her Psychology Degree specialising in Child Development, her experience with special needs children under the Educational Psychologists team and her work with children in their foundation years at school. As a mother and a play therapist she also offers children a playful way to ground and learn the necessary skills for visual, spatial and primary studies. Designed for kindle-fire in bright cheerful colours, this book also encourages sibling support and children being good friends.
