

Many people dream of writing a childrens book. If this sounds like you, Writing for Children – In the Beginning should be your first step. Ann Harth is a professional writer, editor and writing tutor and has written over 120 short stories and books for children. Over 15 years of experience has resulted in this publication containing all the information she wished she had when she started, plus a few new innovations for the electronic age. Writing for Children – In the Beginning is packed with useful information including examples and practical hints for beginning writers in any genre. It addresses all of the common issues that trouble her students. Her light hearted and often humorous style makes it an enjoyable read as well as a great learning tool. From that first spark of an idea to publication, this book should be by your side.
