

Five people, all with a strong desire to write fiction, have been meeting once a week for three years. Every week they have taken pens and pencils and laptops to hand and produced a delightfully astonishing body of fiction. This is where we meet, The Thursday Table, a place of intense creativity, dedication, exploration and just plain good writing. Our book is just what it says on the cover – A Collection of Short Stories. But wait! As wonderful and enjoyable as these wide-ranging pieces are, there is more to this, our first publication. Aside from the pleasure of reading our stories, you may also engage in a very stimulating learning process. Each group of stories comes under its own Heading, and each Heading is linked to the Writing Exercise Prompt which inspired our various pieces of work. These Prompts, as well as a brief description of their origins and applications to the development of our writing skills, are offered here for your own use as a writer; whether you are among the many who have always wished to write, but have been too overwhelmed by the weary weight of too many ‘rights, wrongs, dos, and donts, to take that first step towards creating your own stories, or if you have indeed already taken that step but find yourself at a loss for inspiration, this book is for you! If you have an interest in the craft of writing, let these Writing Exercises and Stories whisk you away. With our exciting collection of ideas and themes, this book is both a guide, full of liberating and playful exercises, and a series of interpretations; short stories that reveal the diversity of invention and creativity. Effervescent and dark, the stories pull you in; read them and discover a wonderful world of adventure, fantasy, satire, romance, family sagas, high drama, erotic tales, mystery and much, much more. And, while you’re at it, learn some of the ways in which every writer, no matter their experience or skill, may become a brilliant writer!
